World Flashes

From the United Press

In spite of the unexpected defeat of the vote on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in North and South Carolina, the final returns on the voting in Ohio and Pennsylvania show that these two states are the thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth states to favor repeal. Utah has given out but eighty per cent of its vote to date, but it is apparent that it will also have a majority for repeal. However, a last minute flood of anti-repeal votes broke the previously uninterrupted swing of thirty-three states favoring the repeal movement. Kentucky, because of its law prohibiting the counting of votes until a day after the voting has not divulged any returns.

The count in these last five states is:

Pennsylvania—354,517 for; 98,549 against.

Ohio — 1,155,152 for; 490,492 against.

South Carolina—32,471 for; 34,627 against.

North Carolina — 111,250 for; 231,301 against.

Utah—68,048 for; 42,022 against.

Major Fiorello La Guardia, newly elected mayor of New York City, led the attack upon Tammany Hall and the rest of the city's grafting political machine early today, and he is found to be in complete domination of the municipal administration. La Guardia, fiery independent leader of the coalition of the Republicans and anti-Tammany Democrats, received 858,551 votes as against 404,055 votes for Joseph V. McKee, Recovery Party candidate, and John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, who had 588,116 votes.

LONDON LETTER

By W. G. QUISENBERRY

United Press Staff Correspondent

Seemingly endless are the new stories—some macabre, some humorous—that are spreading through Europe at Hitler's expense.

Many are obviously imaginative. It is hard to recognize truth in the midst of hysteria, and the arm of propaganda is as long as that of the law. But some of the more harmless tales merit retelling.

The latest is reported by Figaro of Paris:

"He's German, but for all that he's a clever fellow. He stood on that famous avenue in Berlin, the Unter den Linden, meekly holding his hat in his hand, with this notice attached to it: 'I ACCEPT NO MONEY FROM JEWS!' At the end of the day the hat was full of jangling coins.

"Just as the beggar was about to leave his stand, a little Jew came up to him and said nervously: 'Won't you accept a mark from me?'

"'Of course I will,' said the beggar, pocketing it. 'I'm a Jew myself.'"

Then, on top of the story that Charlie Chaplin was considering discarding his mustache because it resembled Hitler's, another Hitlerian fixture, the Swastika, is finding disfavor outside Germany.

The Swastika need to appear opposite the title page in each of Rudyard Kipling's books. It is missing from the latest.

The cross-word puzzle expert, "Torquemada," reports many readers refuse to solve puzzles with Swastika pattern. Newspapers also tell the story of a party of English schoolboys who were attacked in Belgium for wearing the Swastika in their buttonholes.

The Swastika was not invented by Hitler. It is one of the oldest religious symbols in the world. It was used by Indians in both Americas, and can be found on the ruins of Oriental temples. It was the symbol of the Sun, of the Circle of Life, and was held to be a charm against the Evil Eye.

Among the briefer stage jokes are:

"Who's the most popular woman in Germany?"

"The Aryan grandmother."

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR MIAMI DRIVE

Student Approval Completes Plans For the Trip

Rollins College is planning to take its entire student body to Miami on November 17. The Tars will battle the University there, and the students of both institutions are to participate in a gala field day which will include competition in golf, tennis, swimming, fencing, and debating. The debate will be broadcast over station WIOD on Friday afternoon.

At a meeting Tuesday morning the Student Body voted in favor of the trip as proposed by the administration. Although the 90% agreement stipulated as necessary was not quite attained, it was announced that arrangements would be made whereby the required total might be reached.

Rollins College will lock up completely for two days, the 17th and 18th of this month. A grand cavalcade will leave the campus on the morning of the 17th. Seventy-five automobiles, a lunch truck, and a repair car will be escorted by five state police.

The caravan is to proceed to Miami with the repair car in the rear to give help when needed. Aside from stops for gas, oil, lunch, and possible break downs, the parade of cars will move constantly as through traffic.

Upon arrival at Miami the students are to be quartered comfortably in a hotel. Meals will be served at regular hours, all eating together.

In a like manner the cavalcade will return to Winter Park on the 18th. To avoid any possible accidents, the students will be re-

DONATION MADE BY PRES. HOLT

Library Receives 100 Volumes Of The Independent

Rollins College Library has recently received from the Woodstock, Conn., Library 10 bound volumes of The Independent from 1873 through 1916. These volumes were presented to Dr. Holt, who, with his customary generosity, has given them to the Library. They were sent to Woodstock by Herbert Dickinson Ward, whose father, William Hayes Ward, was editor of The Independent from 1896 to 1913, preceding Dr. Holt. Mr. Herbert D. Ward and his wife, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, are well known as authors.

These volumes of The Independent are especially valuable for the Rollins Library because of their association with Dr. Holt, who was its managing editor from 1897 to 1913 and editor-owner from 1913 to 1921, during which time his valuable editorials on all subjects were especially instrumental in furthering friendly international relations.

Irving Fisher in his League or War writes: "Chiefly through the initiative of Hamilton Holt . . . a series of conferences were held in New York, beginning in 1914 . . . resulting in the formation of the League to enforce peace." Also, "The most noteworthy among these personalities was ex-President Roosevelt, who had made his first argument for a League of Nations in his Nobel Peace Prize speech delivered May 5, 1910, and based, in part, on Hamilton Holt's editorial in The Independent published shortly before." Dr. Holt's work in this cause is referred to in Marburg's Development of the League of Nations Idea, and in many other books.

The College is very glad to have this gift and hopes soon to be able to add the missing volumes from 1916 to date.

Chapel Committees Aid Staff In Plans For Coming Year

For several weeks the Chapel Staff has been planning its work for the coming year.

This staff, which was selected to give full representation to all classes, is to be the guiding force of the chapel and all work connected with it. It is to be aided by the following Chapel Committees: Social Service, Program, Music, Publicity, and Ushering. All students genuinely interested in the chapel will readily find a place in one or more of these groups, as the scope of the work undertaken is to be greatly enlarged this year.

The Chapel Staff is composed of Dean Campbell, Professor Trowbridge, Virginia Jackel, Thomas Jukanen, Gordon Jones, Ben Kahns, Eleanor Morse, Bryant Prentice, Howard Showalter, Betty Trevor, Duke Wellington, and Gregory Williams; one representative is yet to be selected from among the freshman girls.

A meeting has been called for tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 in the Frances Chapel; all students interested in lending their services are urged to attend. If it is impossible for any not to attend, he may express his desire to serve on the committee in which his interest centers by notifying the staff in writing before the hour set for the meeting.

Cast For "Mary the Third" Announced By Dr. Fleischman

After a solid week of intensive try-outs, the cast for "Mary the Third," by Rachel Crothers, the first student production of the year, has been selected. This play will be produced in the Annie Russell Theatre on December 6 and 7.

Over fifty students tried out for the production, out of which eighteen were requested by Dr. Earle E. Fleischman to appear Monday night for the final cast selection. The personnel of the play was chosen from this group.

The following students were those fortunate enough to secure parts in the play: The title role and feminine lead falls to Cricket Maswaring, the talented freshman girl, who graduated last year from Abington high school as president of the dramatic club.

Lynn, her successful suitor, and leading male character, will be played by Gordon Jones, who distinguished himself as an actor many times during the past year.

Hal, the unsuccessful suitor and dreamer, will be characterized by David Bethe, who was seen last year in several Workshop plays.

Marion Morrow will continue her four years of dramatic experience by playing the part of the fuzzy old grandmother who cannot understand the modern generation. Miss Morrow's fine talent has been enjoyed and appreciated by many, both students and townspeople.

Celestina McKay was chosen to play the part of the mother, who, though not wanting to be too strict with her daughter, is still not in sympathy with her modern ideas. Celestina has also appeared in several college plays.

Alumni Record To Be Issued In Dec.

The Rollins Alumni Record, publication of which has been suspended for a year because of financial difficulties, will be issued again about the tenth of December. The exact date has not yet been fixed. The Record contains news of sports, campus activities, alumni notes, and other items of interest to the alumni. The Alumni news is gathered from each class by the class secretary and is sent into the office by them. The Record is sent to every alumnae and their subscriptions are taken out of those made to the Rollins Loyalty Fund. The Record is free to the students of the college, who may call for a copy in the Alumni Office when it is issued.

Out-Of-Door School Brings Native Of India To Rollins

Eight girls from the Out-of-Door School at Sarasota, in charge of Miss Parmeal Harison, the school's director, paid a visit to the Rollins campus this past week-end. Miss Harrison and her sister, Mrs. Raoul, were guests of Dr. Holt. The visiting students stayed at Lakeside.

Outstanding of the members of this group was Miss Sumita Chakravorty, an East Indian, who is staying an indefinite time in this country and is now pursuing her studies at Miss Harison's school. She left her native home, Bengal, East India, six months ago. Five months of her stay in America were spent in Boston where she made the acquaintance of Miss Harrison and decided to attend her school in Florida. Miss Chakravorty tells us she had no little difficulty getting a visa for this country, but an influential relative in the United States aided her in obtaining admission into the country.

Sumita made quite a sensation on the campus with her charming native dress which she calls a sari, and her hair done in braids with tassels dangling from them. Her sari, resembling a Grecian shawl, was wound around her waist and then thrown over one shoulder in a most amazing fashion. She also wore a blouse of gay colored red silk trimmed with gold braid. When asked if many girls dressed like this in India she declared that only the wealthy could afford to do so.

Those who met the Indian girl on the campus put many questions to her about her native country. She described how oppressed the people of her country were and how little freedom they had. Whereas in America we speak of our depression as such a deplorable thing, they speak in India of their oppression as well as their depression and this condition is an old one with them. The condition of women is particularly deplorable, Sumita says. They are frightfully abused by the Britishers. In one instance they are better off than formerly, however; they are no longer compelled to marry when they are 12 or 14. They are also free to marry whom they

38 MEN PLEDGE FRATERNITIES

Bids Given Sunday After a Week of Rushing

After three weeks of general rushing and a week of specialized rushing, the six fraternities on the Rollins campus offered "those who were deemed worthy of the honor" bids to their respective groups. Excitement ran high Sunday morning and a feeling of tension permeated the campus. At ten o'clock the fraternities handed in their bids to Dean Enyart. All men expecting bids went to either Rollins or Chase Halls and waited. Dean Enyart delivered these bids at eleven o'clock and instructed the rushees to wait until twelve o'clock before they left the building. Under the new Constitution, the rushees were allowed to compare bids and discuss the problem with their friends. Many students did not make up their minds until the last moment, and a little after twelve o'clock boys began to pour out of Rollins and Chase and approach the various fraternity houses, where future brothers waited in eager and nervous anticipation. The big day went off very smoothly this year, but was featured by many upsets.

Kappa Alpha led the fraternities in number pledged with thirteen men. They were: John Bills, William Carmody, Socrates Chakales, Gilbert Drake, George Harris, Cleveland Melnnis, Linton Malone, George Miller, John Nichols, David Owen, Gordon Spence, Benjamin Rowe and Thomas Powell.

Theta Kappa Nu came next with nine men, namely Paul Alter, Dick Alter, Charles Clawson, William Davies, Henry Lauterbach, Richard Lee, George Porter, Kenneth Solomons, and James Tuverson.

X Club pledged seven: Reginald Clough, Donald Dunlap, Robert Howe, John McNatt, Benjamin Kahns, Norman McGaffin and Bryant Prentice.

Rho Lambda Nu and Kappa Phi Sigma each pledged six men. Rho Lambda Nu received Henry Garrigues, Dwight Foster, Alfred McCreary, Paul Parker, Thomas Page, and Leonard Roth.

Kappa Phi Sigma boasts of only two freshmen, Anthony Carrotta, and Jerry Collinson. Other pledges are Jack Andrews, a transfer student, Donald Backer, David Bothe, and Joe Howell, all upperclassmen.

Delta Rho Gamma pledged Binny Elliott, a sophomore.

Key Society Notice

There will be a meeting of the Rollins Key Society tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house. All members are urged to attend.

SUNDAY SERMON BY TROWBRIDGE

"On Being Born Again" is Theme of Chapel Talk

Professor A. Buel Trowbridge spoke on the subject "On Being Born Again" at the Knowles Memorial Chapel last Sunday morning.

He explained that he was going to use the word "conversion" as a convenient term for the emergence of the individual from the world of frustration into one of joy, liberation and purpose; the "conversion" Jesus meant when he said "We shall know the truth, and the truth shall set us free." Asking why we don't recognize this truth, Professor Trowbridge answered that those who have never found it may be put in three general groups: those who don't want to because it is inconvenient; those who resent change and won't admit to themselves that they are wrong; and those people who are neither very good nor very bad, but indifferent and colorless.

The point was stressed that people do experience a mental and spiritual pass-over from frustration to joy, "new vitality," and the finding of a "more satisfactory life pattern." He cited the case of the Biblical character Paul, who through such conversion reversed his plan of life, liberated his misdirected spirit and changed world history.

Professor Trowbridge pointed out that such conversion existed today and that it may be simply a natural flowering of ideas long incubating through one's home and school influences, or a focusing of one's loyalties after a period of conflict. He warned against a belief, however, that mere emotionalism would bring conversion as mass emotionalism commonly produces much heat but little light; nor does the confession of sins necessarily bring the individual any nearer this clear state of mind for it offers only temporary peace and escape from self criticism.

He asked if we were to accept the implication of truth when we saw it or to lead flag, colorless lives because we would not; are we students going to stay at a dead level during our four years here or gradually achieve adjustment, unification of spirit, and joy of living? If we are to reach this liberation of spirit, we must listen to the "still, small voice of God" within us, the appeal to goodness which speaks to men in their meditations. "When truth dawns God speaks."

In closing, Professor Trowbridge assured the audience that for the modern student the experience of conversion is not only the normal thing but possibly a very necessary thing if they are to be "saved into

Homecoming Program

Rollins Alumni will soon be on the campus to enjoy the festivities planned for them on Friday, November 10, which has been set aside as Homecoming Day.

Fraternity men and women will have the opportunity to look over recent pledges to their satisfaction or otherwise. Past football heroes will witness the strong playing of the present Tars. Golfers will have a chance to display their skill in a match at Alonia. It will be an occasion for friendly and critical contrasting of former students with undergraduates.

A program has been planned by the Alumni Association to keep its members entertained both Friday and Saturday. The schedule is as follows:

Friday

4:00-6:00 P. M.—Open House (Sorority and Fraternity Houses).

6:30 P. M.—Dinner, Commons.

8:00 P. M.—Football Game, Tinker Field, Orlando, Rollins vs. Erskine.

11:30 P. M.—Free Show (?)

Saturday, Nov. 11, Armistice Day

10:00 A. M.—College Assembly, Knowles Memorial Chapel, President Holt, Speaker.

2:30 P. M.—Alumni-Undergraduate Golf Match.

Sunday, Nov. 12

9:45 A. M.—Morning Meditation, Knowles Memorial Chapel.

The committees for Homecoming are:

Dinner, Friday, Nov. 10—Jeanette Dickson Celade, '27, chairman.

Golf Match—Fred Ward and Dave Rogers.

Hospitality — Isabel Graur, Chairman Social Committee of Alumni Association, assisted by members of the varsity club.

Publicity—Beatrice Larsen Vincent, D. Henry Fordham, Severin Bourns.

Program of Variety Given At Meeting In Speech Studio

Tuesday night at seven-thirty another meeting of the Oratorical Association was held. This artistry is a student organization that has assumed a position of major importance among those students interested in Public Speaking.

Tuesday's meeting was of a more humorous nature than the preceding ones have been, three speeches on humorous subjects being given. Jean Parker gave a burlesque of "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." Victoria Pierce assumed the manner of Zasu Pitts of movie fame in giving a mock graduation address. Her imitation of the renowned Zasu was excellent. Benjamin Rowe was very much at ease in his talk in Italian dialect, so much at ease that it is evident that he must have spent much time among these people becoming familiar with their manner of speaking. A serious note was struck in the speech given by Sterling Olmstead. He spoke on world topics of interest.

The purpose of this organization is to foster interest in public speaking. Professor Pierce is the faculty advisor. He gives constructive criticism concerning the talk of the students. There are at present eighteen students enrolled in this activity. The officers are: Reginald Clough, president, Sterling Olmstead, vice president, and Janet Gibney, secretary.

Sky-gazers to Enjoy Excellent Chances Through November

The month of November offers an unusual opportunity for observing the planets. Rarely is there a time, as now, when all the planets can be seen during a single night. The planet Mercury, which is so close to the sun that it is seldom seen, especially in latitudes far North, will be visible low in the Western sky soon after sunset for about two weeks. It will not be visible again in the evening un-

1934 PROGRAM ANNOUNCED BY MISS RUSSELL

Professional Artists Include Hofmann, Mme. Sundelius, Curtis String Quartet

For her professional artists series at Rollins College this year Miss Annie Russell, director of the Annie Russell Theatre, has announced the definite engagements of Josef Hofmann, pianist; Mme. Marie Sundelius, prima donna soprano; Mme. Lea Luboshutz, Russian violinist, in a joint recital with Boris Godovsky, pianist; Dr. Louis Bailly, French viola player; the Curtis String Quartet of the Curtis Institute of Music; and Benjamin de Loache, young American tenor.

The professional artists series, which Miss Russell inaugurated last year, is in addition to the student productions of the Department of Dramatic Arts at Rollins, which latter will be presented this year by Professor Earl E. Fleischmann in co-operation with Miss Russell.

Josef Hofmann's recital, Miss Russell has announced, will be February 5, 1934. Dr. Bailly, a member of the faculty of the Curtis Institute of Music, will appear as a member of a quintet composed of himself and the Curtis String Quartet on January 29 in connection with a Franco-American celebration at Rollins. Mme. Sundelius' concert is tentatively arranged for January 26, prior to the opening of her master classes in singing for a six weeks' period in the Rollins Conservatory of Music. The engagements of Mme. Luboshutz, Boris Godovsky, and Benjamin de Loache have not been dated definitely but will be scheduled during the winter or spring term.

Miss Russell will open the professional artists series with a production of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabbler" on December 14. For leading roles in this production, Miss Russell has engaged Miss Mary Hone, a professional actress, who suspected her in the production of "In a Balcony" at the dedication of the Annie Russell Theatre a year ago last spring, and George C. Holt, Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, who will visit his parents, Doctor and Mrs. Hamilton Holt, in December. Other members of the cast will include Marian Morrow, Eleanor White, Amelia Bigelow, Nancy Cushman, Theodore Ehrlich, Richard Shattuck, and Robert Elliot. Miss Russell will direct and supervise production.

Infirmary is Now Open For the Year

Rollins Infirmary was opened officially with an informal tea Friday afternoon, November 3, to which students and friends of Rollins College came to view the rooms, to receive refreshments in the charming china and glass of the house, and to express admiration and appreciation to Mrs. Gordon Jones and the Mothers' Club for their untiring efforts and splendid contribution to the college.

The Infirmary is a charming house, colorful and quiet. It will have none of the atmosphere of the usual college infirmary. There are eight beds, an isolation room with private bath, and a spacious sleeping porch. A number of one-hundred dollar gifts for the infirmary have been converted, with practicality and taste, into several inviting bed rooms and some excellent equipment.

The Resident Nurse, Mrs. Cook, formerly of the Tampa Municipal Hospital, is always at the house, aided by her assistant, Mrs. G. Wheatley. Dr. Burks and Dr. Ruth Hart will have regular office hours there, as well as in their town offices. Students ill, halt or blind will find relaxation and speedy recuperation a simple thing, in this the finest of all fine infirmaries.

By M. J. DAVIS

Oh Gosh, these post-rushing hangovers!!! It'd make a good title for a song . . . if we had enough energy left to do anything but punch this machine. We never knew, until this last week, that there was a four o'clock in the morning, too! Incidentally, the X Club dance at Dubsdread will set a high mark for social activities to shoot at for the rest of the year. (What a night!!! What a moon!!)

—MJD—

The College was shaken to the very depths of its foundation last week when, for the first time in eleven years, wheat cakes were NOT served for Sunday breakfast! Two platters of sausages, being served by Ralph Tourtellotte, got up from the plate and walked off in a huff, refusing to be eaten with anything else except hot cakes, under the new NRA Wheatcake Code.

—MJD—

Just can't seem to keep the professors in hand anymore around here, what with even Hugh McKean forgetting himself completely and indulging in such roughhouse games as "Pinchy-Winchy," at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house. Hal Sproul is also slipping. He took the South Orange County Jack-Playing championship two weeks ago at Dante Bergonzi's birthday party. They say he's a whiz at that difficult double-bounce, hand-on-head, over-the-fence-and-out movement. He ought to give an exhibition down at Rec Hall, like McDowall's trained football players did the other day. Honest, they almost look like regular students sometimes!!!

—MJD—

Two dyed-in-the-wool rooters of the Rollins Forensic squad had to be carried out of the Annie Russell Theatre the other night and treated at the college infirmary for bad shock. The two spectators, so the story goes, were overcome when Dreiser failed to compare his opponent's argument to the muckly-overworked Mule, who . . . (But we can't go on. Some day the poor critter will just lay down in its debating traces and die.) They do say that Maurie stole the story from the Cambridge team originally, and was afraid to pull it again.

—MJD—

Looks as if our old friend, Ed "Baldy" Buttney has put over another one on us. Did you see those lovely little girls he was with at the game Saturday night??? One's four and the other's five, both blondes, which probably accounts for Ed's scrubby hirsute crop. "One thing about being bald," says Ed, "at least it's neat." Oh sure, just hair today and gone tomorrow!!

—MJD—

Plenty of good copy floating around this week, but we've just time enough to congratulate one Jameson Handy, who became the one and only member of the Unholy Sacred Order of the D. U.'s new National Honorary Society for Gullible Freshmen. Handy was duly initiated and installed by the Grand Exalted Potentate of the local chapter, Carroll Cooney, who has turned from column writing to more serious things these days. We understand he's making a determined bid to break into the upper stratum of the literati, with a submission of his work to "Scribner's." Well, let's hope he gets a break, then maybe he'll lay off us poor mortals for a while!!!

—MJD—

We dropped in the other morning and watched Miss Ewing's class in beginners' dramatics go through its paces. Outstanding spot of the performance was Cricket Magwaring's nifty righthand clout just due south of Jim Tuveson's left eye, during a hectic scene from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." Of course, Jim does counter with a right manly kiss at the end of the scene, but, from the way he was rubbing his cheek, we wonder if it was worth it!!! Never can tell till you try, is all Jim will say.

Pi Gamma Mu Will Sponsor Program in The Assembly Series

Pi Gamma Mu, the National Social Science Honor Society, is to sponsor a program dealing with the present recovery policies. This in connection with the student assembly plan recently started.

This organization is composed of people on the campus who have been prominent in some field of social service work. Members of the society are: Robert Barker, Carol Smith, Kinsman Wright, Dorothea Tust, Cornelia Barrows, Jack Klesterman, William Mosteller, Duke Wellington, Robert Fuchs, Thomas Johnson, and Benjamin Fawcett. The faculty members are: Rhea Smith, Miss Audrey Packham, Dr. Thomas, Richard Wilkinson, Edwin L. Clarke, Dean Anderson, Dean Enjart, and Professor France.

Thomas Johnson is president and Benjamin Fawcett, vice president. The purpose of the Pi Gamma Mu is to inculcate and further the ideals of scholarship and social service, and to develop a scientific attitude and approach to all social problems as they occur.

War Problem To Be Topic Of Talk by d'Estournelles

BARON PAUL D'ESTOURNELLES DE CONSTANT

Baron d'Estournelles is speaking Sunday on the attitude of the younger generation in France toward peace and war compared with the attitude of the generation of the last war. "One of the greatest dangers of the present day," he says, "is not only that the youth of today are unaware of the horrors of war, but that time has so covered over the intense memories of the last war that the last generation were in that those same men and women have forgotten the terrible incidents that took place."

Baron d'Estournelles was in the last war as a pilot in the air force which watched over certain submarines. His first meeting with the Americans took place at St. Nazaire, where he was stationed when the boats came in.

Although the Baron has not as yet completed plans for his address, we may be assured that his message will be most applicable to our current problems.

Weekly Assembly Programs Issued

Tentative assembly programs are announced running through December 13. Dr. Holt will speak on "Keeping Faith With the Dead" at the Armistice day program. At this convocation there will be the regular academic procession. On November 15 the Pi Gamma Mu in consultation with Dean Enjart, Dr. Clarke and Mr. France, will present the recovery policy. This assembly will be held in the Annie Russell Theatre.

On November 22, talented members of the student body will have charge of the program. A special Thanksgiving service will be held in the chapel preceding the Thanksgiving recess.

On December 7, Dr. Howard and his associates will stage a disarmament conference in Recreation Hall. This dramatization will be presented in two scenes as follows: Scene 1. A public meeting, followed by Scene 2 depicting what goes on in private.

A one act play will be presented on December 13 by Dr. Fleischman and his players.

These student assemblies have started off at a good gait as seen by the football demonstration.

Virginia Shrigley and Olive Dickson motored to Fort Pierce Saturday to attend the wedding of Sarah Tetor, who formerly attended Rollins and is a member of Chi Omega.

Volunteers Needed To Observe Meteor Showers Next Week

This November is a month of meteors, for it is only every thirty-three years that a large shower occurs, and this is one of those fortunate years. Owing to the forces at work in space, the orbit of these meteors may have been changed since their last appearance, so that the earth may not encounter the predicted shower.

If it should, however, it will be a show worth seeing. The time to watch is from midnight to four o'clock on the mornings of Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, November 12, 13, 14, and 15. Volunteers are needed to observe on one or all of these nights. The results will be two-fold: personal enjoyment and contribution to science.

Miss Hawes will meet volunteers in Knowles Hall, second floor, on Thursday, November 9, at eight o'clock. Anyone unable to come at this time who would like to join the groups observing the meteoric showers is asked to communicate with Miss Hawes at her office, Room 320, Knowles.

The Spanish Club had its first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Antonia Lamb on Wednesday evening. Plans for activities in the coming year were discussed.

COSTLY TOBACCOS?

Airplane views of American Tobacco Company warehouses at Reidsville, N. C.

ALWAYS the finest tobaccos
ALWAYS the finest workmanship
ALWAYS Luckies please!

Copyright, 1933, The American Tobacco Company

One Hundred Million Dollars worth of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos are being aged by the makers of Lucky Strike

In fine warehouses like these—open to soft Southern breezes—a huge reserve of choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos is aging and mellowing. 27 different kinds of tobacco, "the Cream of the Crop"—for nothing but the best is used to make Luckies so round, so firm, so fully packed—free from annoying loose ends. That's why Luckies are always so mild, so smooth.

"it's toasted"

FOR THROAT PROTECTION—FOR BETTER TASTE

CARROLL COONEY SAYS

Whether you believe in the PHYSICAL or that man was created from the lower misrupid of a prehistoric toadstool OR, whether, as is the case of most of you vermin, there is nothing to you at all—let alone a BELIEF, STAND ALONE IN THE MIGHT OF A NIGHT FILLED TO THE BRIM WITH LIQUID LIGHT OF MOON AND DISTANT PLANETS and say to yourself that God is in his heavens. Somehow your much respected hatred of fellow men and their doings and your forced SNEER at this our Earth will flow slowly into the dark—fight against it as you may—and in its place will come a peace and LOVE toward all fellow men. Yes, this sounds trite to the point of being sentimental drool. It is SO "OLD FASHIONED" that you little fools would sooner lose a hand than give it a second thought. But "Good will towards men" is one of the greatest things that you moving particles of flesh can strive for. When you attain this greatness—and NOT UNTIL—I WILL DEIGN TO SHOW YOU THE SLIGHTEST AFFECTION AND SYMPATHY. "Hell" is a place where no soul cares for another. IT IS ALSO VERY WARM. BEWARE LEST YOU ROAST TO A CRISPY DEATH!

—C.C.—

Perhaps it is because of the mental stupor which all of you are in, or—though much less likely—through your warm laziness, that you never give a second thought to your RADICAL statement "I don't believe in God, the Bible," and so on, if you do not scent a rat when on the subject of the power which your new ideas and religion have given you, I shall be glad to have your carefully printed name and address and I will send you a crate of same rodents. Some day, perhaps on the death bed, you will come back to that little old black book that for years was tucked away behind 10 volumes of "THE HUMAN CELLS AND THEIR FUNCTIONS."

—C.C.—

It is always with much hesitation that I compare human beings with beasts—as I did last week—not because of the absurdity of the comparison, but because I am on fairly good terms with sundry animals and should not like to incur the loss of their friendship. Nevertheless I WILL SAY that it has never been definitely proven that human beings are more intelligent or think more than beasts. For, when all is said and done (as it can be in a comparatively short space of time), we only believe physically. That is, through our eyes, our senses, etc., and you will agree with me when I state that it is impossible to SEE THOUGHTS. If you disagree, I am sure there would be very little VISIBLE FLITTING ABOUT YOUR HEAD. Now you will say something such as "But my dear fellow, what has a Muskrat accomplished?" and I shall answer equally as affectionately, "WHAT HAS MAN ACCOMPLISHED?" Then if all goes right and you are reasonably intelligent, there will be a long pause after which we shall both smile hopelessly, and maybap you will offer me a cigarette to stifle my wind and poison my system. You will notice that I passed right over the stupid mass that would have answered my query with such brilliance as "The Empire State Bldg., electric lights, knowledge of the universe, Macbeth, etc., etc." For my TIME IS SHORT and to answer such ignorance shatters my nerves. Now, since I have established that no thoughts CAN BE SEEN in either BEASTS or HUMAN BEINGS, it only follows that there is no mental element at all and HENCE no difference between the two living organisms. I can now visualize a wit saying to me, "Ah, but did you not think to write this?" BUT MY DEAR FRIEND, don't you see that since you believe all this to be nonsense and rot and stupid beyond words—YOUR QUESTION IS CONTRADICTORY! To sum it all up, there is no mental, without the mental there can be no physical and, since I hate to have you stop here . . . there is NO NOTHING!!

—C.C.—

Before I forget it (as I most certainly would), a teeny-weeny chirping from the dark recesses of this paper last week tried the "YOU-PRAISE-ME-NOW or You-knock-me-now-for-publicity - method". Have you noticed the warmth of the rain in Florida?

—C.C.—

You are all sitting hour after hour in stuffy class-rooms studying all sorts of WONDERFUL things. EVEN I GO TO CLASS, but I have no favorite course that I like more than any other and the following is a smart essay clearly explaining why I am taking History and as so interested in it. I feel that, perhaps if you knew the profound good you would get out of this course, more of you children would take an interest in it.

I JUST LOVE HISTORY

Of all the nice courses in the colleges I think I love History best. History is a wonderful thing. Just think, without history we would not know all the things that people of old did and that would be awful. The name "history" comes from a very old gutteral monosyllable of the Tribicuyoideanderthal "History" meaning "dwump boscol" and that is what it has come to imply today.

About twice a week people come up to me and ask "O wise one, what is the value of History?" Today the value of History is about 1 pound sterling in England or 42 francs and 3 sctragoths in France or 26 dollars in America.

History is telling in the present what has happened in the past in order that we may know by our past history of the present of the past what will presently occur in the future. Some even go a step further and usually trip and fall. Up until the 16th century, when nobody knew very much, a lot of people like this were continually being found lying as they had fallen (i.e., (that is) with left leg folded neatly over the neck scruff and the tongue protruding ever so slightly to the southeast). Now we are so ignorant that we don't even find them.

What I am really driving at is this: History, you agree, repeats itself. Then why study it at all? So help me, but the world has not changed since men were Hydranglepeds. Hydranglepeds were the first things to eat, sleep, fight and love. Yes, it seems a bitter realization that the only additional thing we do is to "Know that the Hydranglepeds were the first people to . . . " (See three lines above). AND HOW MANY OF THERE ARE YOU WHO KNOW THAT?

But in spite of myself I love to sit back and think of Louis IIIIII sitting back and thinking of Eric the Silly sitting back and thinking of Ethelbert sitting back and thinking of me. Just imagine, in one hundred and 12 years people will be looking back 112 years saying "112 years ago people must have been beastly asses."

"It's too thrilling."

quired to hold their positions in the parade both enroute and upon return.

While in Miami every student will have a chance to be active in some sport. On Friday night, the 17th of November, there will be a football game. Saturday is to be a general field day in which all students will participate. As a climax there will be a dance after the field day.

The expense of this trip is to be divided among the students. Each person will pay about $7.50, to cover transportation costs both ways, hotel accommodations for two nights, and all meals. Student association cards will be honored at the gate for the football game and at the dance.

Those who take cars will receive enough gas and oil to make the trip. Four passengers are allowed to each car. If more than three hundred decide to make the trip, additional cars will be obtained.

President Holt is anxious for this program to succeed, and he urges all students to give their support in the matter. The administration is behind the issue, but its success lies in the hands of the student body.

The moment we feel angry in controversy, we have already ceased striving for truth, and begun striving for ourselves.—Carlyle.

No education is ever quite complete, and few have well begun until we have looked at the furnishings of great minds and taken nourishment at the table of their biographies.

What's In A Name?

(Sayings of "The Old Country Gentleman")

By HARRY RAYMOND PIERCE

(Reprinted by permission of the Portland (Me.) Sunday Telegram.)

Did ever you folks, any of yer, top ter think about names, what they mean ter yer—and furthermore, about yer fust name? If your father an' mother had named yer properly, that is, gives yer thee right fust name, yer mighta' been President of somethin', the firm yer work with, or even President of the United States. 'Course, yer don't have ter have names like Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, or Woodrow Wilson, and yet they sound rather u'fo'nice, easy ter say, and remember. Yes, and Hamilton Holt comes in fer the same kind of a name, just two words, yer see. These men don't call fer frills or extra letters tacked on. Now, if Calvin Coolidge had a' put on a "C" before his name, he'd never been elected, and yer can't imagine Hoover climbin' into the chair with a fust name like—well, like Clarence or Oscar. Al tried to change his ter Alfred, but didn't begin early enough in the game to get folks mter it, so Al stuck to him.

Now, take the name of Harry; boy's name, ain't it? How many Harry's do yer know that'e growed up in their minds? Usually boysh and full of fun, ain't they? If they'd a' called him Henry, James, or Robert, and never Hen, Jimmie, or Bobbie he might have amounted er somethin' in the community, and possibly become a tax collector or town treasurer. If yer want yer boy ter have a place in the world, jest think about the name he has ter answer to, every time yer call him.

Now, if yer don't quite agree with me, call the next boy yer see on the street "Oscar," and if he isn't over 16, he will correct yer with resentment in his tone and in his face too, and tell yer, "My name ain't Oscar!"

Silas and Reuben are also names boys won't want to be called. For a spell I'm agointer write about names, but you must remember that there's exceptions to every rule, in names like in everything else, but the exception ain't the thing to consider.

I know a fellow whose fust name is Elmo, and his mother insisted on calling him Elmo. It has pretty near ruined him; every time he had to write it or tell it out loud, he looked silly. It made him odd; he had a far-off look in his eyes and would hardly ever come when he was called.

I know a woman, too, whose name is Cal Lailly. Well, it sort of fits her, to some extent. She growed up like the lily flower, admired by everybody for graciousness and kindly ways. Contrast that with Lizzie Butler an' see if the last don't suggest the picture of a thin-faced woman, good as gold, but not so careful about her passen, as fer as appearances go.

Established in 1894 with the following editorial: "Unassuming yet mighty, sharp and pointed, well-rounded yet many sided, assiduously tacious, yet as gritty and energetic as its name implies, victorious in single combat and therefore without a peer, wonderfully attractive and extensive in circulation: all there will be found upon investigation to be among the extraordinary qualities of the Sandspur."

TO THE ALUMNI

The Sandspur bids welcome to its many old friends on the occasion of 1933 Homecoming.

To the members of previous staffs who return, we extend a most cordial invitation to join us in our news and editorial observations of what transpires on and off the Rollins campus; we are certain that many valuable ideas can traffic from the older hands to the present incumbents in our offices.

The Sandspur is of course primarily a student organ of news and opinion, conducted by representatives of the student body in the best interests of the entire college. These "best interests," however, are inextricably connected with you, our alumni, for it is assuredly through you as well as through al lof us now in attendance that our college must be carried to the fore.

We of the Sandspur solicit your expressions of such thoughts, views, and conclusions as may operate for the betterment of our services.

THE DRAMA

The drama is fortunately well suited to the tastes of such a group as we of Rollins constitute in company with the townspeople of Winter Park. The success is the sum of those plays which have enjoyed competent direction and unrestrained support from their casts points to an undeniable appreciation of the genuinely good drama by our audiences.

Material for assembling and producing plays is plentiful; as does any varied bedy, ours presents a representative cross-section of character and type sufficient for a more than average success in the dramatic endeavors which may be undertaken.

We enjoy the advantage of a unified dramatic department as competent as should be desired, our college theatre is admirably equipped, and we have unusual opportunities of unrestricted leisure time in which to indulge ourselves in the helpful process of excellent training.

Productions now scheduled are rapidly developing and those to be selected for later presentation will be especially adapted to the capacities of the available material. There is no finfr way to make use of leisure than to put it to work on pleasure, and student drama has no peer in providing such enjoyment.

Rollins is already recognized for its advanced principles of education and for its outstanding student activities. The opportunities now open to all offer the possibility of a correspondingly enviable position for its dramatics.

E.G.J.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Through an oversight in the make-up procedure of last week's issue, two important stories were omitted from the Sandspur.

We wish to tender our apologies to Dean Enyart for the omission of the account of his chapel address, and to Bob Black for our missing the notice of the change of publication date for the Flamingo; the first issue of that magazine will appear November 15. Details of a program of refinancing forced the two week postponement of its publication.

A DEBT ACKNOWLEDGED

In the Rollins Infirmary, which is now in full operation, a long needed institution has at last made its appearance on our campus.

It has become a reality largely through the efforts of the Rollins Mothers' Club, organized in Winter Park last spring; the recognition by that organization of the sore need for such an institution and the efforts of its members both here and elsewhere toward the completion of their undertaking are deserving of our most appreciative gratitude.

ON INTRAMURALS

Since the entrance of Coach McDowall upon the Rollins scene, those who have lived and learned with the college have witnessed a phenomenal rise in intramural athletics as well as in varsity football. Now we can truthfully say that Rollins, speaking on a proportionate basis, has one of the largest and finest systems in the country.

Yesterday the touch football tournament for the year nineteen hundred and thirty-three officially commenced and with it arose a few problems that deserve enlightment.

The major problem to be considered is that of the attitude of the players toward their intramural managers. Any one of you who has ever managed an intramural team knows that the job is no bed of sweet peas. He, to employ the vernacular, is the "fall guy," if the team loses to him falls the blame. If the team wins, every one forgets the manager in the throes of their own glory. The manager, in nine instances out of ten, did not ask for the job; undoubtedly he is elected by the entire organization he represents, and upon him is placed the responsibility of calling practices, getting sufficient players out on the field, and keeping up a fighting spirit. Because he has his position by general consent, the co-operation of every man on the team is rightfully his due.

To the players we should like to say: "Co-operate, don't let personalities enter into your intramural teams, work for the good of the whole team rather than for that of one individual."

The second major problem that comes to our mind is that which concerns co-operation among the various teams. Last year's touch football season was one of success for the losers as well as the winners. It was successful for these reasons:

1. Good sportsmanship was displayed by all.
2. Co-operation by teams and individuals was constantly given.

If we who participate in any form of intramural sports this year can live up to these two principles exemplified last year, then the success of this year's program is inevitable.

ADULT EDUCATION

One of the most popular fads of today is the "new day of education for older people." It has struck the fancy of all, and has held on for several years now. The yearning for knowledge and culture leads people to take on and absorb everything pertaining to these attributes. Yet many new phases of a liberal education can fool the average person into believing that he is acquiring something which will promote his standing in society. Until recently people have thought of education as something for children; something which a man either got or missed in his early years; something which he generally forgot in his mature years.

Now the desire for knowledge seems to have approached a mass movement. The increased attendance at school or university does not necessarily mean that more education is going on. It should not be inferred from the large numbers engaged in adult education that democracy has suddenly decided to rid itself of intellectual shoddiness. If the advertisements of correspondence courses in self-improvement which regular appear in popular magazines are an indication of the instruction offered for sale, people might better spend their money for patent medicine or in having their fortunes told. Most of this advertisement is nothing more than propaganda and pure "bally-hoo." Yet people go on throwing their money away in a wild chase for personality and education improvement. We are taught that thinking is only a part of acting, that knowledge is real only when it can be put in operation. Much that passes for adult education today serves only to make people more opinionated and prejudiced than before. Adult education is on the air, in these enlightened times one can get it anywhere—like bootleg whiskey (and just as bad to the individual). It has developed now into giving education by radio. All you need do to achieve scholarship is to turn the radio on, close your eyes and go to sleep. You can get it without effort, without knowing that you are getting it, or just who is educating you. People do not realize how futile it is to go on seeking something always just out of grasp.

People should be educated, but not by hallyhoo methods. The greater mass of middle class persons want to be thought of as educated or learned men and women. The time is coming when people will know and recognize cheap and vulgar education, and discard it for the type that elevates and really improves. For the time being it seems we will go on being the victims of those whom "will give us a complete course in this, that, or the other for a reasonable price."

BOOK REVIEW

By H. ALLEN SMITH
United Press Book Editor

The story of Frederick G. Bonfils and Harry H. Tammen, who employed the medium of journalism to build themselves a western empire in the Rocky Mountains, is told with brilliant wit and superb gusto by Gene Fowler in "Timber Line" (Covici Friede).

Not only because he himself is a product of the Denver Post editorial rooms, but because he knows the essential elements of a first-rate personality story, Fowler has turned out a book fully as entertaining as his popular biography of Bill Fallon, the "great mouth piece." Bonfils and Tammen seized upon a small, ailing newspaper in Denver in the latter days of the 19th Century and by sheer force of their energetic personalities, brought themselves to rank with the most powerful leaders of the entire west.

Fowler writes of the Post realistically and colorfully. His lusty, galloping style fits his subject perfectly. He tells of how the two publishers acquired a circus, of their remarkable exploitation projects, of their interests at home and abroad, and of their courtroom adventures. The book brims with sparkling anecdote, and with the names of men and women of national and international prominence. The chapter on the "unsinkable Mrs. Brown" verges on the epic, and the story of Tom Horn's hanging in Cheyenne adds to the charm of "Timber Line."

Another newspaperman who has picked a theme that should ring the bell is Stanley Walker, with "The Night Club Era" (Stokes). Walker begins with the arrival of prohibition and carries us through the dark years of 1923. He writes entertainingly, with a Menckenesque verve, but his book lacks organization.

In the pages of the Walker volume you will come upon sprightly disquisitions on such personalities of our time as La Guinan, Izzy Einstein, Legs Diamond, Walter Winchell, Helen Morgan, Jimmie Walker, Rev. John Roach Straton, Louis McHenry Howe, Owney Madden, Heywood Broun, and a thousand or so others.

"The Night Club Era" is essentially the story of prohibition, as seen by a man who is clever, cynical and possessed of a sharp wit. As such, however, it is far from a whole material. It will serve in the future as one of the source books when the great work on the social effect of the dry law comes to be written.

Gilbert Gabriel has utilized some old materials in a new formula to make an engrossing novel called "Great Fortune" (Doubleday Doran). He places his story of a loving couple buffeted by the late unlamented Wall Street disturbance into the mouth of a dramatist who relates it, as the plot of his new play, to a prospective producer. The book, under this scheme, is divided into three acts and the scene occasionally shifts from the story itself to the group gathered in the producer's office, showing "audience reaction" to the playwright's tale. The device is ingenious and Gabriel, a dramatic critic, is an excellent writer. Thus his book is something more than a new stunt in fiction.

Dispatches from Kentucky some days ago told of the suicide of Fothall Daingerfield, known as a writer of detective fiction. A few days later his last book was published by William Faeghar Payson. It is called "Mrs. Haney" and it proves that the author's death removed a man of great writing talent. "Mrs. Haney" is a short novel, a tragedy of the South. It contains unmistakable evidence of genius, and should be read by every person interested in modern fiction.

ONLY YESTERDAY, with John Boles, is for you if you have been waiting for its singer-star to return to the screen. If you don't care for him, the chances are the picture will just barely slide by, although it has its moments. It is hardly one of those stupendous things that most of the Hollywood output is supposed to be.

NIGHT FLIGHT, boasting Helen Hayes, the two Barrymores, Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, and Clark Gable in its cast, is a sure winner. The story isn't so deep and is in fact somewhat superficial, and the imposing list of names above does not mean so much in the picture as in the advertisements; all is all, however, the picture is good.

The hazards met by the airmail over the Andes way down in South America supply a good deal of the reason for things having happened in the construction of the film, and the detail is sufficiently authoritive to be convincing. The impotence of airmail is pushed far beyond the mere rush service for extra-stamped letters when medicinal aid is flown to a city stricken with an epidemic of infantile paralysis, and the action is thoroughly satisfying if not precisely breath-taking.

No one in the cast stands above his confreres, although perhaps John Barrymore has the best opportunity to do so, and he does group it well enough to outshine brother Lionel. Clark Gable is quite superflluous, and the others are not bothered with difficulty of expression in their simple parts.

It's good just on general principles.

Here's a triple-threat dictionary (one threat from me and two from you) for your spare time, or for use when you can't threaten people:

biology—a portion of a beautiful vow: "I swear biology stars above."
book—Something commonly passed.
chair—the leader of those starts a crowd to making noise and then tries to keep up.
date—state of being defunct, similar to a doormail.
dramatics—cursed garrets, as in "I goota clean them dramatics" (Macbeth).
french—what you have a lot of if you're popular.
gutter—word used in statements of obligations, also in the name of a song, "I Gutter Go."
math—a big meeting.
notes—a very rude ejaculation, delivered as follows: "Notes to you!"
office—an Amectranism, usually preceded by he's and succeeded by nut.
settee—a word popular with Chambers of Commerce, each of which boosts its fair one.
spanish—a most undesirable green vegetable.
thesis—from the title of a song, "Thesis Romance."
trance—formidable things, one of which passes by sometime later than 1:13 each day.
urge—units of energy, which has nothing to do with any urge.

The scene was a crowded bus on the Outer Drive, the time late in the evening of a hard Fair day. The interior lights had failed, and three dozen solidly packed humans were thankfully seated or superfically standing in the space intended for half their number. No one moved unless all consented.

The tall young man on my left addressed the tiny lady beyond him. "May I find you a strap?" he asked solicitously.

"Thank you," she replied, "but I have one."

"Good," rejoined my neighbor, "maybe you'll let go my tie now."

——PPP——

Did you ever notice how every member of an organization either lowers or raises the general average? That elusive typical man is one whom no one ever saw, and the more closely you scrutinize those about you the farther they all digress from that average. You see things in them that are far from ordinary, and without becoming pessimistic we will probably agree that what you discover is nearly invariably disappointing, a possible exception being granted if you're in love.

The art of friendship is dependent on the mutual willingness to refuse the milder surprises. That's what confidence is, too, and all in all, there isn't enough of it flying around hereabouts.

——PPP——

Not everyone is so fortunate as I. At least so I surmise from the contents of a tonchingly flattering letter in yesterday's mail, in which I am offered an astounding proposition—one that is so beautifully shimmering with gold plate that I barely slept last night for dreaming about the glorious future in store.

You see, it's thisaway: My name has been selected from thousands and thousands of less worthy possibilities simply because I am the flower of this community (at least in the eyes of the manager of the Health-o Prize Club) and can undoubtedly recognize the advantages of my opportunities better than any other comers.

Well, if I affix my illegible signature to a coupon enclosed with this tribute to my finer qualities, I am given all of a sudden 12,500 votes toward something or other; then, if I enclose two dollars for a grandiose assortment of twelve "quality products," I am slipped (presumably on the Q. T.) an extra 2,594 votes, making a grand total, if laid end to end, of 14,496.

Reading further, I am breathless to discover that 15,000 points will give me the privilege of accepting from this Health-o Prize Club either a Buick sedan or $3,500 in cold, hard cash.

No mention of how to go about gaining that all-important final quintette of precious votes is slipped into the epistle, and I give both you and the august Prize Club, my very best word that until I am advised what to do in this, the foremost crisis of my short earthly existence, I shall live off of coffee, cherry cobbler, and goat's milk to avoid nervous indigestion.

You can protect civilization by law; you must reform it by love—one man at a time.

—Henry Van Dyke.

THE WORLD VIEWED AT ROLLINS

Prohibition, as we go to print, is enjoying the last day of its existence. Six states voted yesterday on the eighteenth amendment with only three of them needed to complete the required thirty-six for repeal. Prohibition, with its supporters, the Volstead Act and the Jones Law, good causes poorly executed, was not only never an aid to temperance but also has always been crime's major promoter and an eager assistant to many other evils with which this nation's authorities have had to cope in the last ten years, and it is with pleasure that we see this atrocious act removed from the constitution of the United States. As Governor Smith of New York once appropriately remarked, "Certainly an experiment, but we do doubt its position of nobility."

——WVR——

Other voting of extreme importance yesterday was the mayoralty election of the City of New York. Joseph V. McKee, running as an independent candidate, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusionists' standard-bearer, and Mayor John P. O'Brien, sponsored by Tammany, offered to New York's citizens their choice of three widely differing personalities.

——WVR——

The Mississippi River, recently overflowing its most secure levees and causing inhabitants along its banks undue worry, has finally receeded and at present is offering the river people a chance to salvage the like of which they have never known before. Already many valuable discoveries have been made including the finding of bale of various old-time romantic river steamboats.

——WVR——

Roosevelt's investigation of Russian affairs with view toward recognition by the United States was sometime ago mentioned in this column. We were interested to note in Sunday papers that the Chief Executive has made the move to recognize the United Soviet Republic. Propaganda a few years ago implied that no nation would ever be able to recognize a country with such a radical form of government as Russia had, but now we find our own powers about to act. Another one of Roosevelt's radical, perhaps socialistic moves will soon be carried into effect.

European nations, obsessed by fear of impending war, are steadily increasing their armaments, a United Press report recently revealed. Two factors lie behind these movements: the fear that Hitlerite Germany is preparing for revenge, and the belief that the disarmament conference will fail. France and Belgium are the two principal nations to act in this seemingly outrageous fashion, while many of the smaller continental countries are preparing to increase their defenses.

An announcement of importance to Central Florida was the report issued last week that the Brooklyn Dodgers will train in Orlando this winter. This is the first time for some five years that Orlando has had the privilege of being used as a place of training by a major league baseball team. The last club which spent its early spring season here was the Philadelphia team of the American League.

The Ford-N.R.A. controversy, mentioned in this space last week, has not yet been settled. At the last report General Johnson proposed compromising with the automobile capitalist suggesting a thirty-five hour week for workers in Ford's plants. However, yesterday the National Recovery Administration had not received any answer to their suggestion. Whether or not Henry Ford will fall in line with other manufacturers and join in the N.R.A. is still a great question in Washington, but it still seems likely that some sort of compromise must be discovered in order to prevent a boycott on Ford productions.

The University of Michigan looms as the likely winner of the Big Ten Championship after the results of last Saturday's contests when Northwestern was tied by Illinois and Michigan continued the winning streak which they have held for the past year and a half.

News Extracts from Gamma Phi Beta

The Gamma Phi's entertained last Tuesday afternoon with a Hallowe'en party. The refreshments served were pumpkin pies and cider. The chapter house was appropriately decorated with Jack-o-lanterns and autumn leaves.

Elsina Williams and Constance Ely presided at the tea table last Friday at the weekly tea. The guests were Grace Conner, Jane Gag, Grace Rasbry, Sally Linnerud, Beste Weston Tuttle, and Stella Gibling.

Stella Weston Tuttle and daughter are visiting in Winter Park. Stella, better known as "Beste," graduated with the class of '30, and was a member of Gamma Phi Beta.

Mr. Pfister Paints For Art Seminar

Those attending the Art Seminar, held on Thursday in the Studio, were most fortunate in being able to hear a lecture, and witness a demonstration of vibration painting by Mr. Pfister.

Mr. Pfister explained that this type of painting originated in France, and was practiced by such great painters as Manet and Monet. It is a most successful style for depicting sunlight, because it illuminates black, and produces warm and cold effects instead of light and dark.

While painting his picture, Mr. Pfister also expressed the opinion that he feels Americans should make more use of their own art instead of importing ultra-modern art from Europe.

This week, a talk will be given by Mrs. George Noyes, whose husband had a beautiful exhibit at the Studio last year. Mrs. Noyes is an authority on Spanish Antiques.

Rho Lambda 'Nuse'

Prospective pledges of the Rho Lambda Nu fraternity were entertained on Tuesday evening at a formal banquet and later with a dance and party.

President Bob Fuchs presided at the banquet and gave a short talk. Each rushee was presented with a beer mug with "Rho Lambda Nu, 1932" and his name printed thereon. The painting of these cups was skillfully handled by Miss Dorothy Lou Gaeller of New York City, one of Rollins' most promising young artists.

The rushees attending were: Paul Parker, Ted Jameson, Jerry Collison, Tom Pope, Jimmy Meyer, Joe Howell, Binsy Elliott, R. Brown, John Beaufort, Ben Rowe, Henry Garrigues, Ralph Gibbs, Alfred McCreary, Jack Andrews, Linton Malone, Bob Caton, Dwight Foster, George Miller and Leonard Roth.

Following the dinner the chapter house was cleverly arranged to carry out the Monte Carlo idea. Three gambling tables were set up and everyone, including the young lady friends who had arrived during the interval, were given a sum of bogus money which they turned in for chips. At the end of the games each one handed in his or her money. Prizes were awarded to those whose winnings were largest.

Jack Klosterman acted as Master of Ceremonies for the two "stupendous" floor shows, which starred a young tap dancing expert from Orlando. Music was furnished for dancing during the evening by Miss Ann King of Orlando at the piano.

Ladies present were: Miss Mildred Macota, Miss Betty Mower, Miss Elsa Hildebrandt, Miss Mary Elizabeth White, Miss Marjorie White, Miss Margaret Gethro, Miss Virginia Goodrich, Miss Grace Terry, Miss Doris Van Gal, Miss Dorothy Lou Gaeller, Miss Cornelia Barrows, Miss Louise Large, Miss Hazel Bowen, Miss L. J. Barlett, Miss Jean Parker, and Miss Phyllis Jones.

Chaperones for the occasion were Mrs. Barlett, house mother of the Lambdas, and Mrs. Sackett, of the Kappa Alpha's.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, Mrs. George Lincoln, Dean Enyart and Miss Ethel Enyart were special honored guests.

X Club Notes

The X Club gave an open dance last Wednesday night on the newly landscaped and decorated terrace of the Dubsdread Golf Club. Carl Dann, new owner of the Club, has done extensive remodelling and decorating to the grounds and clubhouse. The palm-shaded dance floor was hung around with Japanese lanterns and illuminated with colored lights. The dance lasted from eight-thirty until twelve.

Theta Kappa Nu's Hold Formal Rush

Friday evening found the Thetas and their rushees sojourning at the Waterwitch Country Club to enjoy an informal barbecue. This pleasing rendezvous supplied many interesting activities such as ping-pong, poker, bridge, tennis, and swimming.

The climax of the evening was reached with a few short speeches by Dr. Fleischman and Coach Jack McDowall, and a return tennis match between Varney and Lauderback. In spite of the many showers that interrupted this match there was keen interest shown by the audience and the game ran into three sets, Varney taking the first and the last. After this "Doc" Anderson did some astounding card tricks. About eleven the whole party headed to Orlando and took in the midnight show. (And what a show!)

Tea Given Sunday By Kappa Gamma's

On Sunday afternoon, November the fifth, the active members of Kappa Kappa Gamma gave a very delightful tea for the pledges, their friends and Mary Rickey, a transfer student. It proved to be a most lovely affair. The table, attractively laid, was appropriately adorned with blue candles, whose dim glow gave the room an additional charm of hospitality. Mrs. Chaffey graciously served as hostess.

November Offers Fine Sky for Study til April. Venus, which is the brightest of the planets, is seen as a very bright object in the west setting about two hours after the sun. It reaches its greatest brilliancy December 31st so that it will be growing steadily brighter until that time. The last of this month it will be bright enough to be seen at high noon with the unaided eye.

On the evening of November 20, there will be an unusual and pretty phenomenon of an occultation of Venus, when the planet will disappear behind the dark side of the moon. Mars is the reddish object west of Venus, setting an hour after sunset. This makes an unusual picture in the West, the three planets in line with the sun and setting after the sun in the order Mercury, Mars and Venus. Jupiter is the morning star rising in the east about three hours before the sun. The planet Saturn, unique with its ring system, is almost due south in the early evening, about 45 degrees above the horizon. The remaining planets, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto, are never bright enough to be seen with the naked eye, but are visible after midnight as telescopic objects only.

Cast for Student Play Now Selected

The father will be characterized by Bob Black. His talents with dry wit and humor find a fertile field in "Mary the Third." For his dramatic efforts at Rollins last year Bob was honored by membership in the Rollins Players.

The part of Bobby, the hair-brained younger son, will be portrayed by Milford Davis, who displayed his talents in several productions last year.

Max and Letitia, friends of Mary, will be played by Chick Prentice and Jean Glass respectively.

Other members of the cast, who appear in the prologue, are, Mary the First, Martha May Newby; William, Dante Bergonzi; Mary the Second, Blanche Fishback; Robert, Don Becker; Richard, John Beaufort.

Rehearsals started last night with Dr. Fleischman in charge.

Alumni Notes

J. Harold Dale, '00, pastor of the Congregational Church of Billerica, Mass., who was ordained by Dr. Ward, has recently been elected Moderator of the Congregational Church in Massachusetts by the state conference at North Adams. This is the highest honor in the Congregational Church. He has served the same church for thirty years and in addition is a district deputy Grand Master of the Twelfth Lowell Masonic unit.

Last Thursday evening, the Phi Mus held an informal dance at their chapter house. About twenty guests attended.

The Phi Mu's gave a tea dance last Saturday afternoon from two until five-thirty. Refreshments were served to twenty-five guests.

with. She spoke of the three classes of people in India: the rich who are the only thriving class, the middle class and the poor. The latter two have only a bare subsistence and the poorest are in a pitiful state of poverty. Most of the people, aside from the rich, can afford to eat only two meals a day. India is striving, though with little success, to gain her freedom from British rule. Now they have absolutely no "say" in the government and are practically in the condition of serfs.

When asked what religion she was partial to, Sumita professed herself to be a Vedanist of which there is an organization in America called the Vedanta Society. This religion, she elucidated, is literally "the end of all wisdom" as expressed by its philosophy. Sumita has an uncle now residing in America who is fostering this ancient Indian culture in this country.

The mother tongue of East India where Sumita lives is called Bengali, but in the schools and colleges of that section, they speak some English though it is not predominant. In all there are 222 vernaculars in India; the common dialect of all India is Hindustan, though English is being spoken more and more.

Miss Chakravorty and her companions saw many sides of Rollins during their visit here. They were guests at the football game between Rollins and George State Teachers College and attended morning meditation Sunday in the Knowles Memorial Chapel. The other students who were guests this past week-end at Lakeside were, Betty Purdy, Suzanne Somerville, Lee Francis, Frances Olmsted, Louise Maury, Polly Raoul, Verrona Burns. They seemed to enjoy their visit at Rollins and mingled with the Rollins students.

Milder ..yes I like that word about cigarettes

"When I think of milder cigarettes nowadays, I always think of Chesterfields.

"Because Chesterfields are milder. They've got plenty of taste and aroma to them but they've got mildness too!

"I smoke Chesterfields all day long—when I'm working and when I'm not, and there's no time when a Chesterfield doesn't taste milder and better.

"I'll put in a good word any time for a cigarette like Chesterfields—they're mild and yet they Satisfy."

TARS DOWN TEACHERS 13-0; MEET ERSKINE FRIDAY

SCORES IN FIRST HALF GAIN VICTORY OVER GEORGIANS

Early Attack Instrumental In Important Win, And First Conversion In Eight Tries Bolsters Hopes

Scoring in the first and second quarters, the Rollins Tars emerged victorious in a bitterly contested game with South Georgia State Teachers' College, 13-0.

The Teachers lived up to their pre-game reputation Saturday night and gave Coach McDowall's men plenty to think about. A fast-charging line time and again opened holes in Rollins' forward wall and shifty Georgian backs carried the ball through to the secondary. Both teams exhibited smart, defensive work, reducing scoring to a minimum.

The Tar forward wall bore its share of the burden quite effectively. It was a battle of two great lines and in the last analysis Rollins' superior offense gave her the margin of victory.

In the first and second periods, Georgia was baffled by a bewildering succession of spinners, passes and off-tackle slants culminating in two touchdowns for the Tars.

Play by Play

Rollins kicked off to Georgia. The Teachers failed to make a first down in three attempts and Wrinkle dropped back to punt. George Rogers came through fast and blocked the kick, which was recovered by Tom Powell on the Georgians' 20. After a short line plunge, Dave Schrage circled the end behind good interference for a ten-yard gain.

Rollins failed to score on the following plays and the ball passed into the possession of Georgia on her own 2-yard line. Schrage received the punt on Georgia's 25 and wriggled and twisted his way back to the 23. Rollins scored a first down on a short pass from punt formation, Miller to Schrage. Miller smacked the center of the line for seven more and on the next play gave the ball to Washington, who slipped through right guard and crossed the goal standing up, a swarm of tacklers following the wrong man. Schrage made good on the try for point.

Shortly after the start of the second period Rollins made a second successful foil for a touchdown. Washington, Miller, and Schrage alternated in carrying the ball and worked their way slowly down the field, starting on the Georgia 46. The Rollins blocking at this point was very effective, each play clicking for six or seven yards. The Tars worked the ball to their opponents' six yard line, where Miller cut wide around right end and crossed the line for the second score of the evening.

From this point on until the end, the two teams battled on even terms. From a spectator's point of view the contest was slower than any the Tars have played this season. This was due to the stubborn resistance offered by both elevens when on the defense. Every yard gained was a yard bitterly fought for.

It was an expensive victory for the Tars. Ray Miller, quarterback, one of the important cogs in the Rollins offense, left the game early in the third quarter with a sprained ankle. Malone and McGinnis, who played outstanding games in the guard positions, both suffered leg injuries as did Leonard Roth. Wrinkle, quarterback of the Teachers, was taken from the game and removed from the field in an ambulance. He was severely bruised about the kidneys.

Dick Washington, acting captain, played one of the finest games of his colorful career. He filled his blocking assignments to perfection and gained steadily on the offense, ripping the Cracker line to shreds. Schrage was outstanding on offense and defense, turning in a fine performance.

The entire Georgia backfield worked very well. Jake Hines, halfback, was an especially brilliant ball carrier, denting the Tar line for gains on several occasions. Statistics of the game show that the Tars made nine first downs to eight for the Teachers, and gained 232 yards from scrimmage as against 95 for their opponents.

The Line-up:

Rollins		So. Georgia
Rogers	LE	Sullivan
Owen	LT	Bergeron
Malone	LG	Cherry
Winant	C	Bussey
Sealover	RG	Quattlebaum
Hines	RT	Riggs
Powell	RE	Hale
Miller	QB	Wrinkle
Schrage	LHB	Spears
Chakales	RHB	Hines
Washington	FB	Fulford

Substitutions: Rollins: Roth, McGinnis, Doyle, McNutt, Carmody, Morse, Whalen, Tourtellotte.

South Georgia Teachers: Anderson, Martin, Parks, Griffin, Bell, McCrannis, Brunkkin, Munch.

Two-thirds of the students at the University of Paris are Americans.

Every time a Colgate University player blocks a kick or makes a touchdown is a major game Coach Andy Kerr presents him with a new hat.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

By PETRINA WOOD

Maybe it's the weather or maybe it's the girls, but whatever it is, what is it? The rather "dying" enthusiasm toward one sport or another is so uninteresting compared to the rollicking plans of the opening days. Few girls are good at everything but here's a golden opportunity to be skillful at some one sport and to be able to play various games well, in prospect of later years when only the rheumatic and the colorless lazybones scorn the sidelines of tennis courts, swimming pools, and golf courses.

Ahead is a Florida winter promising glorious sunshine, and innumerable occasions to at least try out every sport. It is frightfully convenient (in the present company of a few classmates) to learn the tricks of the game, in fact to be able to put one over on next summer's competitors who have spent the winter molding in steam-heated libraries.

Basketball

The Kappa Kappa Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, and Chi Omega sororities have completed the organization of their teams and are ready for competition among themselves and the non-sorority group selected from the various dormitories.

Archery

Agatha Townsend, Ann Clark, Mary Elizabeth White, and Jane Marshall will continue their skillful shooting this fall with the bow and arrow.

Golf

The golf list is longer than in previous years. It appears to be unwieldy in classification because so many of us are "off our game" and we are all discouraged by the scores resulting from three and four putts on the smooth living greens.

From general observation girls new this year who will be prominent in golf are: Cricket Manwaring, Sally Farnsworth, Barbara Trashlood, and Janet Lichtenstein. And besides the regular first group of last year, Jane Lolley, Mary Lib Jones, Esther Earle, and Petrina Wood, Virginia Jackel and Grace Embry will compete for placement.

Tennis

Margaret Gethro, Betty Mower, Jane McCullough, and Mary Diehl are outstanding in tennis during their first term at Rollins. Their progress in the tournament will be watched with interest.

The matches of the first round of the fall tennis tournament continued with Bill Murphy defeating Cricket Waswaring, Jane Williard winning from Mary Lucas, Betty Mower defeating Eleanor Wilcox, and Lucy Greene taking the victory from Annette Twitchell.

Fifty Members Make W. A. A. Picnic Merry

Over fifty members of the W. A. A. went a-picnicking last Wednesday evening. They met under the Family Tree around six o'clock. Some came on bicycles. Some walked. Others arrived in automobiles, but they all brought good appetites.

After the first enthusiastic spreading of sandwiches and devouring of all in sight, they drifted into a vague circle and sang merrily on into the night.

SIX TEAMS IN INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL RACE

Teams Practicing Hard With Championship in View

The Intra-mural touch football season started last Tuesday with Jack McDowall as its head. There will be six teams competing for the honor of champion.

The X Club, the undefeated champions last year, although their definite line-up will not be announced until the time of the game, is the favorite to win this year's conflicts. Through the loss of Bill Miller, who was high scorer of last year, they will be somewhat weaker. The probable players will be: Parsons, George and Curtis Gannon, Brslove, Buttner, Clough, Moore, and Dreiser.

Manager Robert Stauffleburn announces that the K. A.'s are putting a strong team on the field this year and will give all comers a stiff battle. The members of the team are as follows: George Miller, who is a fine kicker, a good passer, and a fast runner, Bob Barber, last year an all Intramural linesman, will again be on the field, Paul Noy and Sam Rowe are linesmen, Jim Gandy and Drummond will play the backfield. Spence, G. Hora, and Rowe are new men and have as yet to prove their worth.

Rho Lambda Nu's team is composed of: Fuchs, Brubaker, Fawcett, Shannon, Gosliar, Pepe, McCreery, Garvin, Parker and Foster.

The Theta Kappa Nu's team has a strong defense and will be hard to break through. Frank Wetherell, the main stay of the line, is back and ready to do his bit. Al Stoddard will be in the backfield to stop any long runs. Paul Worley, S. Eaton, K. Roberts, H. Roberts, Beckman, Lauterbach and Davies will help to make the team a winner.

Kappa Phi Sigma will have a fairly good team this year according to advance reports. As yet their men have not been given definite positions but the following men are out for the team: Gene Smith, Andy Carretta, "Duke" Wellington, Howard Showalter, Kingsley Karnopp, Joe Howell, Jack Ott, Bill Woodhull, Dave Tenchent, and Gregory Williams.

Delta Rho Gamma and Rollins Hall will have no team this year, but the latter will combine with Chase Hall and make up a team. Chase has not as yet named their team.

CAROLINA TEAM IS STRONG AND FAST; TARS WORK HARD

Rollins Reserves To See Action Unless Regulars Recover Rapidly; MacDowall Drills Line

Rollins will play host to Erskine College of Due West, S. C., in its annual homecoming gridiron classic to be held Friday night at Tinker Field, Orlando. Critics feel that the Tars will have to display a better brand of football than they showed against the Georgia Teachers in order to defeat the rangy, fast-moving Carolinians.

It is probable that many of the Tar reserves will see action, owing to injuries suffered by Miller, Roth, McGinnis, and Malone. Unless these men are in condition by game time, the Tar line-up will be considerably weakened. Its defensive work has shown improvement in every game thus far, but the toughest tests on the schedule are at hand in the form of Erskine this week and Miami next.

Erskine has not had an overly successful year, but has displayed a superior brand of football in losing a close decision to Oglethorpe 13-6. A strong Wofford eleven was victorious over Erskine 13-12, the outcome of the game being in doubt until the final whistle. The Erskine team is reported to be large and rangy with plenty of power both on offense and defense. Her running attack is varied and deceiving and will bear close watching.

This week the Rollins eleven will work out in earnest, intent on keeping its record of two years intact and if possible prevent the powerful Erskine team from scoring.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES
TO BE AMERICA'S GREATEST STUNT GIRL

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Copyright, 1935, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

LISTEN TO MARY WIGGINS, greatest of all girl stunt performers, as she tells of her discovery that one cigarette is different from the others! She says:

"I have to be sure my nerves are healthy to do my stunts, changing from a speeding auto to a plane, the high dive on fire into fire, wing walking while up in a plane, and the high-altitude parachute jump. As to smoking, I've found that Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves. I've tried all the brands. Camels are milder and better in flavor. They do not give me edgy nerves even when I am smoking a lot."

You'll like that rich Camel flavor and mildness. And your nerves will tell you the difference there is in Camel's costlier tobaccos.
